Norwich and Worcester recovered nearly all the decline of yesterday, and the transactions were large. Long Island has fallen off considerably lately, and we cannot account for the depreclation. When it was selling at twenty-two, we remarked it was a cheap stock, and it is worth as much now as it was then. From this the directors have appropriated sufficient to meet the entire loss by the freshet, which occurred in the spring of 1850, and which could not be ascertained until some time after its occurrence. The amount of extraordinary expense charged off for this purpose is about $6,000.

Lard, butter and bacon have come forward this year meet abundantly, while there has been a very important decrease in the receipts of cheese and wool. Beef and pork do not vary much from last year's supply to a corresponding date. With a limited exportation of all the leading articles in the face of this increase in receipts, prices are likely to be more depressed, and the stocks in the principal seaboard markets are likely to be sufficiently large to prevent any advance in market value, after the closing of Internal navigation. Our communication with the West -the great source of supplies-is now so easy and rapid, that the receipts of breadstuffs and produce continue unisterrupted throughout the year. A few years ago, we were almost entirely cut off from the West during the winter mouths, and consumers on the seaboard had to submit to an advance in prices for nearly every ar-ticle of food, upon the suspension of navigation on our agricultural products to market, have no doubt had a very great influence upon the movements of agriculturists, and given a great impulse to cultivation. As railroads extend, and remote sections of the country are brought nearer to markets, the increase in production will be annually large. The receipts of domestic produce at New Orleans, this sesson, compared with last, do not show such a great increase as the receipts from the canals of this State at tide water, as will be seen by the annexed table:-

Lead, p.gs..... 229 213 The great increase in railroads and canals connecting the valleys of the Ohio and Mississippi with the Atlantic markets, has, without doubt, tended to divert the course of merchandles and produce seeking an collet, and surged the current towards this city. The capitalle's and merchants of New Orleans are perfectly well satisfied that if they make no effort to prevent this diversion of trade it will gradually leave them. New York has invested an immense capital in securing the Western trade, and she will not let it slip away from her ea . y. New Orleans is alive to the importance of some movement to even sustain her present position; and something will be accomplished.

The Supreme Court of Penn yivania has decided that a debtor, intending to claim the three hundred dollars exempt from sale by execution out of his real estate, by the act of April, 1849, must give notice of his intention before the inquisition and sale, or he cannot come in for money at the distribution. The act contemplates the debtor shall get the three hundred dollars exempt pro-perty at an appraisement, where practicable; and the right to demand money out of the proceeds of sale, is only a last resort, when the property does not admit of divi-sion. The failure to give notice of the claim to the she-riff, who is the agent of the judgment creditors, before the sale of the realty, will bar the claim of the debtor to the fund. The fourth annual report of the Galena and Chicago
